Genoa, 2 November 2011

Ansaldo STS wins EUR 62 million contract in France

Ansaldo STS will provide signalling technology ERTMS 2 on the 182 km of new High Speed line Le Mans – Rennes in North West of France

Ansaldo STS (STS.MI), a Finmeccanica company, signed, through its subsidiary Ansaldo STS France, a contract with Eiffage, one of the European leader within civil works and concessions, to provide complete signalling systems and services on the 182 km of new High Speed line Le Mans - Rennes, so called BPL, in North West of France.

The contract has a value worth EUR 62 million and is due for completion at falls 2016.

The scope of work for Ansaldo STS covers the design, supply, test and commissioning of the signalling systems and services to equip the 182 km of new High Speed line, and 32 km of conventional lines ensuring connections to existing network.

Ansaldo STS will provide ERTMS level 2 and TVM 300 on the High Speed line, and ERTMS level 1 on the conventional lines, with all related equipment (Interlocking, Hot Box Detectors, Track Circuits, Radio Block Centers and Eurobalises) to allow operations up to 320 Km/h.

With this new contract Ansaldo STS reinforces its leadership of railway signalling, as the unique supplier of signaling system for France High Speed lines, initiated since the very beginning of the High Speed railway era thirty years ago, and confirms its worldwide leading position in ERTMS development and deployment.
